The grain inspection measure that is now before the house committee is being made an interesting topic of discussion by prominent members of both branches of the present legislature as well as by visiting wheat growers who are the most directly interested in the matter of grading wheat. The Bismarck correspondent of the Minneapolis Tribune in an ably written paragraph upon the subject practically admits the necessity of the passage of some such measure as is now being considered when he says:

"It is likely that, while this joint committee is in Minnesota, it may be directed to visit St. Paul to see if any deal can be fixed up with the authorities by which North Dakota officials could be allowed to take part in the grain inspection at Minneapolis and Duluth. No definite plan for securing this object appears yet to have been worked out in detail, but there is a general demand among the farmers that something should be done."

The provisions of the bill now under consideration are in direct line with the suggestions of the Tribune in the formative stages of the present session. The Tribune claims no credit, but can not help feeling that the wheat growers of North Dakota are justly entitled to protection against alleged unjust discrimination as regards grading wheat. There has been so much said upon this subject that almost any kind of a law looking toward the protection of North Dakota wheat growers would be received with satisfaction.

All members of the constitutional convention will read with interest the report of the meeting of the association held last evening. The attendance was not large but representative. The constitutional convention was made up of exceptionally able and earnest men, and the result of the forty-five days' deliberations of that body is the best constitution of any new state.

The character of the nominating speeches in the joint assembly was of a high and intellectual order. It is a pleasure to know—if the statements of the gentlemen who orated can be relied upon—that whoever is elected he possesses all the elements that combine to make a useful and honorable member of the United States senate.

The fusionists last night decided to give Frank Thompson of Fargo a complimentary vote for senator, and when the field makes its choice, the fusionists will probably support the candidate.

The Tribune gives a large amount of space to the nominating speeches this morning, that those who were not in attendance on the joint session may read and know just what was said.

The field caucus met yesterday afternoon, took several ballots without change, and last night took an adjournment until 10 o'clock this morning.

To Members.

Disputed Authorship.

Mrs. Murray Keith, a venerable Scotch lady, from whom Sir Walter Scott derived many of the traditions and anecdotes wrought in his novels, taxed him one day with the authorship, which he stoutly denied.

"What!" exclaimed the old lady. "D'ye think I'dna ken my ain groats among nae o' thae's baill?"

THOUGHT BABY'S EAR WOULD DROP OFF

Body and Head Mass Bleeding Sores. Suffered Beyond Description. Physician Could Not Even Return. Kept Under Opium. Cured by CUTICURA.

My infant was one mass of bleeding sores which extended to his head, and we thought one of his ears would drop off. His sufferings were beyond description, and he had to be kept under opium. Our physician did everything for his relief, I am sure, but to no purpose. My attention was called to a CUTICURA testimonial. I bought the CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT. The result was simply marvellous. After the third day the opium was discontinued, and he was free from pain and terrible itching, and in seven weeks was cured, with a clean, smooth, baby skin.

J. C. HARDWICK, Clara, Ga.

CUTICURA is the purest, the sweetest and most efficient skin cure and humors remedy ever compounded, and applied to all affections of skin and scalp known, with loss of hair. Warm baths with CUTICURA SOAP and gentle anointings with CUTICURA OINTMENT cleanse the skin and scalp of crusts and scales, rid the hair, humors, and inflammation, and thus soothe the red face.

Sold throughout the world. FORGET THE OLD CUTICURA. Buy Proprietary. SAVE YOUR SKIN Hands and Hair by using CUTICURA SOAP.

A LEPROSY TRAGEDY.

THE SACRIFICE OF KAOMOUNA, THE HAWAIIAN BEAUTY.

A Story Which Sheds a Bright Light Upon the Filial Devotion of Kanaka Women—Why a Baby's Advances Were Not Returned.

The usual Honolulu crowd was down at the dock when the steamship Australia, seven days from San Francisco, pulled alongside the pier on a brilliant, balmy afternoon in January, 1895. American women in summer afternoon costumes, a few English and a few German women of society arrayed also for steamer day (which is a Honolulu function), leaned back languorously in their carriages and phaetons, under the shade of parasols, listening to the lazy complimentary talk of the duck clad, let enraptured young business men who combined duty with pleasure in thus waiting for the great steamer to slip laboriously into her measured berth beside the pier.

The usual groups of silent, expectant-eyed Kanaka men stood in the shade of the pier sheds, humble in attitude, chary of words, and yet sweet natured. Some of the men wore shoulder leis (wreaths of flowers) over their labor grimed hickory shirts, and the Kanaka women wore leis in cross belt over their flowing white Mother Hubbards. In truth, the flower wreaths were everywhere. Staid, middle-aged merchants among the whites wore them about their helmets and straw hats, and all of the white women in carriages had belts of Hawaiian exotics.

All of the Kanaka women had bare feet. They stood about in little groups as silent as the men of their race. A few of the Kanaka women carried tiny brown babies—silent also. The young women were of varying degrees of beauty, their figures showing a uniform excellence of proportion.

One of these Kanaka women at the dock on this brilliant January afternoon was particularly beautiful. She was clad like the rest of the women of her race. She was fully 5 feet 10 inches in height, and the white silk cord with which, unlike the other Kanaka women, she drew her white dress about her waist, emphasized the splendid, heroic proportions of her figure. Kaomouna seemed quite unconscious of her beauty. The young shipping clerks, hurrying to and fro on the dock, with their pencils behind their ears, stopped suddenly when they caught sight of her. The women in the carriages, who had not been long down from the States or from Europe, saw Kaomouna, and asked the women of longer Honolulu residence, "Who is that glorious creature?" Kaomouna, with a very sad face, spoke only an occasional word to one of the Kanaka women.

The Australia was made fast to the pier, and the passengers began to troop over the gangway. There was one man with his pretty young wife and 3-year-old little girl. The little girl was the first to catch sight of Kaomouna as she reached the bottom of the gangway. She quickly freed her hand from her father's grasp and ran toward Kaomouna with baby words. Kaomouna smiled at the little girl, but did not offer to take her up. Instead, she folded her arms, looking down at the little pink faced child pleasantly. When the mother had taken the little girl, she raised her eyes to look at Kaomouna.

"Did you ever in your whole life see such a perfectly beautiful woman?" asked the young wife of her husband in a whisper when he came up. "And Tita seemed to take to her immediately. If we could only have her for a nurse for Tita!"

Kaomouna heard her.

"Kaomouna would love to be that," she replied in a soft Kanaka accented speech, smiling. Then a look of pain came into her face. "But it may not be—it may not be"—and with her hands at her eyes Kaomouna turned suddenly and disappeared among the departing men and women of her race.

Three months later the parents of the little girl were at the dock together to witness for the first time the saddest of sights—the departure of the lepers for the island of Molokai. The Kilauwa Hou, the leper steamer, was out in the stream, and the lepers were being carried out to her in barges. A litter was borne through the roped enclosure for the lepers. On it lay a very old Kanaka woman in the final stages of the disease. At the side of the litter walked Kaomouna. Her face was very sad. The parents of the little girl wondered. They spoke to an official of the Hawaiian board of health, who was busy in the task of embarking the lepers.

"Surely," they said, "she does not accompany the lepers?"

"Who, Kaomouna?" replied the health official. "Oh, yes, she does. But it is her own choice. Kaomouna, you know, has been secreting her old mother for a number of years. We always knew there was something mysterious about Kaomouna—that is, we have known it for the last five years. She had made queer visits to a palm hut far over in the Nuuanu valley. Last week we followed her—we felt there was leprosy in it. We found her mother in the hut—Kaomouna had had her in hiding, trying to save her from Molokai, ever since the disease became evident. Kaomouna is not infected in the least—she has been careful. But she elects to follow her mother to Molokai. Extraordinary? Why, not at all! You do not understand the filial devotion of Kanaka women—men, too, for that matter. Such cases are common enough."

The parents of the little girl looked at each other. There were tears in the mother's eyes.

"That is why she folded her arms and would not touch Tita!" she said. "In this world of God, civilized or uncivilized, could there be anything more noble?"

All was ready, and the Kilauwa Hou, with Kaomouna and her mother on board, slowly started down the harbor, the Kanakas on the dock setting up the weird, plaintive death wail—Washington Star.

Kentucky's Queer Names.

Speaking of queer names, the Danville Advocate recalls that a Madison county school has been taught in succession by a sparrow, Duck and Crow. The Cincinnati Democrat says that at Washington and Lee university the close of a session found but two graduates who received the A. B. degree. One was Buzz and the other Blair. The Richmond Register says in that city a Hog and a Pig were taught by a Cobb, and the Sharpshooter World rises to remark: "This village contains two hotels. One is the Wood House and the other is the Ware House."—Louisville Courier Journal.

Another View of It.

EARLY PHILADELPHIA SOCIETY.

The Imperious Madam Rush Materially Widened the Small Social Circle.

"In Philadelphia were certain streets or sections beyond which no man could take his family without danger of social exile," writes William Perrine of "The Most Aristocratic Social Event in America"—the Philadelphia "assembly"—in The Ladies Home Journal. "Many a Philadelphian has been known to decline the comforts of a modern house and submit to the dreary inconvenience of an old one, rather than set up his household above Market street or below Pine street. In the code of the old assemblies, no body lived above Market street and Arch street was the dead line, the limit that looked far out on only the barbarians and rich plebeians of the modern Philadelphia. Within the boundaries of the assembly's jurisdiction the mansions were long marked by a somber simplicity. After nightfall all external signs of occupancy or of cheerfulness vanished. The shutters were closed tight; no lights were to be seen, and it was not until foreign critics, as late as the centennial year, called attention to this nocturnal dismalness, that there began to be a change. As a rule, moderation in entertaining prevailed. It was seldom that there were lavish private functions outside of a very few families, and there was no disposition to enlarge the lines of society or to widen the doorway of admission until the imperious Madam Rush came upon the scene.

"I am going," said the madam to Mrs. George Harrison of the old regime, to have a party at my house, and I want you to be there. I shall have 850 guests."

"What?" exclaimed Mrs. Harrison. "Impossible."

"No, I mean what I say."

"Well then, my dear," was the reply, "I can only say that you must have a great many common people among your friends."

MRS. PINKHAM TALKS ABOUT "CHANGE OF LIFE."

Women are Urged to Prepare for this Wonderful Revolution in the Economy of Their Life Blood—Mrs. Watson Tells How She Was Helped.

At no time is woman more liable to physical and mental dangers with hours of suffering than at the "Turn of Life." The great want in woman's system is ability to properly adjust itself to the new conditions. The outlet, monthly, of blood is now being diminished and carried into the body for the supply food of its later years.
Daughters, you can now to some extent repay your mother's early care. She must be spared every possible exertion. You must help her bear her burdens and anxieties. This critical timesafely over, she will return to renewed health and happiness. That so many women fail to anticipate this change thus happily, is owing not merely to lack of care, but to ignorance. There is, however, no excuse for ignorance when experienced advice can be yours free of all cost. Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., she has helped great numbers of women successfully through the Change of Life, and she will help you.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best tonic for uterine changes. It works harmoniously upon all these overwrought organs, invigorates the body and drives off the blues.

Read this letter from Mrs. DELLA WATSON, 524 West 5th St., Cincinnati, Ohio.
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time during the change of life, and it has been a savior of life unto me. I can cheerfully recommend your medicine to all women, and I know it will give permanent relief. I would be glad to relate my experience to any sufferer."

were warmly applauded during the course of the piece.

The Sanford Dodge company closed its engagement here last night and left this morning for Dickinson. The company is an excellent one, and comprises some very clever people, ladies and gentlemen, who made many friends in this city during their stay. The Prisoner of Spain, produced by the company last night was a decided success, and greatly pleased the large audience in attendance.

Endorses LaMoure.

Editor TRIBUNE: As it seems to be customary and fashionable now that every Tom, Dick and Harry must have a "say" upon the present senatorial struggle, I respectfully ask to be allowed a few remarks, not because I am a Norwegian but because I am an American.

Those who have watched the course of political events within our state ever since North Dakota obtained statehood must certainly know Hon. J. D. LaMoure of Pembina county. I for one believe that no man whose name is mentioned as a possible U. S. senator could do our state better service than Mr. LaMoure. His abilities and qualifications are unquestionable and I do not know of any one who is today a stronger factor in political circles within our state. In spite of all that his enemies have said and planned against him Mr. LaMoure has always been the favored choice from his home county and proved so many a time that the spiteful plans of men and mice gang oft afield.

Mr. LaMoure is a man who does not go behind any one else for advice. When he has made up his mind he pushes it through without any effective opposition. When it comes to the welfare of the state no man who is manly enough to look squarely at his record as a public man and also his standing among his home people can be mean enough to sneer wildly at the motives that induced Mr. LaMoure to allow his name to come up for U. S. senator, real honors from North Dakota. And I do not hesitate to say that he will look after our interests in Washington and prove that the same influence that makes him a man of power at home would be of great benefit to us in the U. S. senate.

Very respectfully,
T. S. NORGLAND.

After the Cordage Trust.

The government having had such luck pursuing the whiskey trust into its hole, has now attacked the cordage trust, and means to find out why these little schemes flourish. When the facts are gathered the federal grand juries in Boston, New York and Philadelphia will be requested to look into these cases. If this thing keeps on all the rich men will be in jail. This will be a good thing for the assessors. They will not be bothered hunting up our millionaires and trying to make them own up to the possession of property. We shall simply have to elect a sheriff as the assessor. We are happy to announce to all and sundry that the Yellow Kid in "Hogan's Alley" is no trust. At the Athenaeum Jan. 20.

MYSTERIES OF SPACE.

The Vast Unexplored Regions of the Upper Air.

Above us there extends a vast unexplored space far more interesting from a scientific point of view than the icy regions around the north pole. No one can reach the limit of the upper regions of the air and live unless he carries with him air to breathe and fuel to warm him, for at the paltry distances of ten miles above the earth the air is too thin to support respiration and the thermometer would register far below zero. It would be a region of perpetual snow on a peak of the earth if it should rise to such a height. A person in a balloon could not hear a friend in a neighboring balloon even if they were near enough to shake hands. There would be no medium for the propagation of sound waves. There would, however, still be a medium for the conduction of electricity—a medium, in fact, of great conductivity—almost as good as a metal, and it is this medium at even a less height which Tesla proposes to use in his methods of transmitting power hundreds of miles through the air without wires.

We live under a blanket of air which protects us from the extreme cold of outer space. This low temperature becomes evident 14,000 or 15,000 feet above the surface of the earth, and would, as I have said, reach a point far below zero at a height of ten miles. At this height we should no longer observe the twinkling of the stars, for this scintillation is due to the movements of our atmosphere, which at the height I have mentioned would be extremely rarefied. If one could photograph the sun's spectrum at this altitude we could greatly extend our knowledge of the shortest wave lengths of light, for the atmosphere completely absorbs such wave lengths as are concerned in the X ray phenomena. That this absorption really takes place can be proved in a laboratory. The heat and light which we receive from the sun are thus greatly modified by this blanketing layer of air. The long waves of the energy from the sun are called heat waves. The intermediate waves are termed light waves, and we receive these in full measure. The very short waves, however, are stopped by our atmosphere and are transformed into—what?—Professor John Trowbridge in Forum.

THE PLAIN OF GUINNES.

Its Transformation Into the Field of the Cloth of Gold.

Roberta B. Nelson gives a very good idea of the magnificent display of Henry VIII of England and Philip I of France when they met in good fellowship on the plain of Guisnes 380 years ago.

The king's retinue had been selected from the noblest of the kingdom. Wolsey with his 800 followers, headed the escort, and was followed by dukes, earls, barons, bishops and knights, with their retainers. The escort numbered 4,000 horsemen, not including the queen's escort, numbering nearly 2,000 persons and 800 horses. The French king had an equally splendid retinue. King Henry and his great cavalcade were taken, on arrival at Guisnes, to the magnificent palace provided by Wolsey. There was an old palace there, and Wolsey had established himself in that, and erected one for his king. The palace was the most beautiful place imaginable. It had so many glazed windows that it looked as though built of crystal, and much of the woodwork, both inside and out, was covered with gold. All the way from the gate to the door were rows of silver statues. Inside, the walls of the chambers and halls were hung with magnificent tapestry embroidered in gold, and the ceilings were draped with white silk.

But Henry was not to spend all of his time in his fine palace, for tents had been erected on the plain, and in these the two kings and their suites were to lodge. The tents of the French king were pitched just outside the walls of the town of Ardes and extended almost to the tents of King Henry.

The tents in which the two queens were lodged were covered with cloth of gold, as were also the tents of the ladies in attendance upon them and of all members of the royal families. The effect was dazzling. Beautiful pavilions, hung with cloth of gold, dotted the plain. Banners floated everywhere, fountains of wine spouted in the bright June sunshine; horses, decorated with fluttering ribbons, pranced about gaily. So gorgeous had the dreary plain been made that it has become known in history as the "Field of the Cloth of Gold."

English Officers' Mess.

What is the average cost of messing per day, or the price of breakfast, luncheon, dinner, without allowance for wine or beer? The average cost in any well ordered regiment is 4 shillings a day. It has been known to be done cheaper, and of course, in some cavalry regiments and "crack" corps the amount is considerably higher. However, 4 shillings a day may be taken as a very fair average, and we cannot say that we think this sum to be all out of the way.

The house dinner in the cheapest recognized London club comes to half a crown, including table money, and there are few places, we fancy, where one can get a gracefully served breakfast and luncheon, with no lack of variety, for the combined sum of 18 pence. In fact, it is only fair to state that the ordinary charges for daily messing have been brought within such limits that those officers who may not have much private means may be enabled to live in a comfortable and suitable manner.—Chambers' Journal.

London's Store of Furs.

London and Peking are the two great treasure houses of fur for the east and west of the old world. East and west do not equally divide the area supplied from these two centers, for London serves Asia as far as Tibet and the Caspian, south of the Caucasus, and as far as central Siberia, north of that line. All Turkey in Asia, Thrace, Macedonia and nearly the whole of Russia now lay their furs in the London market. Sables, trapped in Siberia, are sold in London, bought by Russian merchants and shipped back to the empire of the czar, and the skins of foxes, taken on the Caspian, are purchased in Limerick to go to Koniah or Van and thence the cloaks of Turkish boys and pashas. Peking serves what we know as the "far east."—Cornhill Magazine.

Churches Ferry Sun: An eastern liquor house recently sent out circulars offering to send a bottle of wine to any one who would furnish them with the names of fourteen men, one or more of whom would order a bill of goods from them. A list of fourteen well known prohibitionists of this town was sent in by a prohibition business man of Churches Ferry, and last week he received his bottle of wine, which is an indication that one of the number is taking his bitters on the quiet. The question is, which one?

A SOLDIER'S STORY.

Serving His Country, He Fell a Victim of Rheumatism.

Suffered Unspeakable Torture for Many Years—Every Remedy Failed to Help Him, Till He Used Dodd's Kidney Pills—They Cured Him.

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 16.—"I have suffered with chronic rheumatism," said Amos H. Watkins of 422 Hennepin avenue, this city. "I have seen service in different climates and the hardships I bore sowed the seeds of disease in my system and nourished it till it had me completely in its toils. My sufferings were past the power of words to describe, every joint was a furnace of fiery burning pain. Every movement seemed to tear my flesh asunder. I used remedy after remedy, but all with the same result—failure. Finally, thank God, I was advised to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, I did so, and the result is told in three words—they cured me. I must say they have worked a miracle in my case as I have not felt a pain since I took them." Mr. Watkins knows whereof he speaks, and his word cannot be doubted. Is not his experience with Dodd's Kidney Pills enough to prove beyond dispute that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the one, the only cure on earth for rheumatism?

Dodd's Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or sent on receipt of price by the Dodd's Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

High Times in Klondike.

Harry Warnock, a Klondike pilgrim, writes the following letter to a friend at Jamestown: Cold weather has set in here now. The thermometer has been 40 to 50 below for the last couple of days. You cannot hear anything but "mush out" and "gee" and "haw" as the people yell at their dogs. All teaming is performed with dogs. It is surprising to see the loads some of these dogs pull. They are worth from $75 to $500 each. Five or six are used generally on each sled. Most of the dogs are "malamutes," "husky" or Indian dogs. They have more of the appearance of a wolf than a dog. There is just snow enough on the ground for sleighing.

CONSTITUTION MAKERS

Twenty-one Members and Officers of North Dakota's Constitutional Convention Meet.

An Informal Session Election of Officers—Arrangements for an Excursion Next Summer.

An Enjoyable Meeting.

The constitutional convention association held its biennial meeting yesterday at the office of Surveyor General Williams one of its honored and respected members. In the absence of its secretary, Hon. W. H. Rowe, then of Dickinson county town of LaPort, Texas, J. G. Hamilton, secretary of the constitutional convention was elected secretary pro tem.

The roll was called and the following members and officers were present:

Messrs. David Bartlett of Griggs, C. V. Brown of Wells, F. B. Fancher of Sully, Arne E. Haugen of Grand Forks, W. S. Lander of Richland, J. H. Math of Grand Forks, H. F. Miller of Cass, V. B. Noble of Bottineau, Wm. Ray of Stark, Andrew Stotten of Richland, B. F. Spalding of Cass, R. N. Stevens of Burlington, A. O. Whipple of Ramsey, E. A. Williams of Burleigh, M. N. Johnson of Nelson, Wm. Budge of Grand Forks, Harvey Harris of Burleigh, W. E. Purcell of Richland. Three officers, J. G. Hamilton, chief clerk, Fred Falley, sergeant at arms, and R. M. Tuttle, official stenographer.

The following were found to have passed from earthly cares to the great beyond: E. W. Chaffee, J. L. Colton, M. K. Marrinan, Jas. F. O'Brien, John W. Scott.

Hon. L. B. Richardson, who as secretary of the territory called the convention to order was unanimously elected an honorary member thereof as well as M. H. Jewell, who was the official printer of the convention.

The association appointed as a committee to act with the president and secretary, Governor Fancher its presiding officer, Fred Falley its sergeant at arms and Congressman Spalding a member to arrange for an excursion of the members of the convention to the Yellowstone park in June or for a lake trip as the committee should determine.

The association directed the secretary to send greeting and Godspeed and hopes for speedy and permanent recovery to Alex. Griggs, Harvey Harris, Alex. Fleming, James Gayton and R. M. Pollock.

In the election of officers, W. E. Purcell was chosen president, J. G. Hamilton, secretary, and E. A. Williams, treasurer. The executive committee to be announced later by the president.

The association was in good fettle and its session was enlivened by interesting reminiscences of its debates and proceedings. Congressman Johnson was present and heartily enjoyed reference to incidents amusing at the time, which are not even "chuckle" to those who participated therein. The "press" was represented and all action affecting its liberty was expounded a tribute to Marshall McClure of the Tribune staff.

The phraseology of the preamble of the constitution afforded Bartlett of Griggs an opportunity to say that he was not displeased now that God was in the constitution because he has not seemed to be a potent factor in the legislature since. A discussion of rates for the summer excursions reminded a member of a speech made by Hon. E. D. Wallace who, in referring to "passes" on the last day of the session when a proposed clause prohibiting members of the legislature from accepting passes said "that he had found that he was the only member of the convention who had returned his pass, but had now concluded that it was foolery to throw away a pass, and that members of the legislature should not refuse favors of that kind."

It having been intimated by one of the members that lack of persistency on the part of former officers in securing the annual dues of $1 from each member may have had something to do with the present stringent condition of the exchequer brought forth the prophesy from another member that the character of the two new officials, Major Hamilton, secretary, and Hon. E. A. Williams, treasurer was sufficient guaranty against the continuation of an empty purse. Altogether, it was the pleasantest and most social gathering of the association since the convention adjourned, and the members know that no state in the union has a constitution which represents the advanced political thought of the age so well as does the constitution of the state of North Dakota.

Catarrh Leads to Consumption.

A Forerunner of the Most Fatal Disease.

Though its offensive features are sometimes almost unbearable, few people are aware of the danger of which Catarrh is the forerunner. Catarrh invariably leads to Consumption. Growing worse and worse each winter, those who rely upon the usual treatment of sprays, washes and inhaling mixtures find that it is impossible to check the disease with these local applications which only reach the surface. The offensive discharge increases all the while, causing a feeling of personal defilement, and gets deeper and deeper until it is only a question of a short time until the lungs are affected.

The importance of the proper treatment can therefore be readily appreciated. But no good whatever can be expected from local applications, as such treatment never did cure Catarrh, and never will.

"I had such a severe case of Catarrh that I lost my hearing in one ear, and part of the bone in my nose sloughed off. I was constantly treated with sprays and washes, but each winter the disease seemed to have a firmer hold on me. I had finally been declared incurable when I decided to try S. S. S. It seemed to get right at the seat of the disease, and cured me permanently, for I have had no touch of Catarrh for seven years."

"MRS. JOSEPHINE POLHILL,
"Due West, S. C."

Those who have had the first touch of Catarrh will avoid endless suffering by taking the right remedy at the outset. Others who have for years sought relief and found only disappointment in local treatment will find it wise to waste no further time on sprays, washes, inhaling mixtures, etc., which are only temporary and can not save them from Consumption. Catarrh is a deep-seated blood disease. S. S. S. is the only remedy which can reach the very bottom of the disease and cure it permanently.

In 1891 when this same law was in force in this neighborhood alone over $100,000 worth of grain was lost on account of cranky engineers. I have been a farmer and engineer in this state for over sixteen years, and I believe there were more explosions in the years when the inspection law was in force than during the years since. There are bound to be explosions, license or no license, inspection or no inspection. The legislature may as well provide the kind of water to be used in boilers. If we are to have a boiler inspection bill let it be fair and just and not one-sided, for the next legislature will repeal it sure as was the case in 1893.

BOILER INSPECTION.

A Red River Valley Farmer Protests Against a One-Sided Measure.

A subscriber of the Tribune from Aneta, John P. Lundquist, writes as follows regarding the boiler inspection bill now before the house:

"I would like to make some remarks through your paper about House Bill No. 3, providing for boiler inspection and licensing engineers. I contend that all licenses ought to be good all over the state and not as this bill provides in districts where issued only. Take for instance the case of one who lives in the corner of three districts. If he intended to go with his machine from one district to another up and down the line he would have to travel many hundred miles to get all his licenses and spend much money. In my opinion no inspector should employ a deputy who is not capable of examination and licensing engineers as he goes through the country inspecting boilers. This would prove an immense saving to the people. Under this bill the farmer who has a machine can be fined for almost everything and the engineers get off without punishment. The thrasher is at the mercy of the engineer and if he goes off on a drunk the farmer will have to lay around in a straw pile I suppose till the engineer gets ready to operate again. The measure ought to have two sides to it. An engineer ought to give the farmer at least ten days' notice of quitting no other way."
